4 June. At about 1620, no aircraft were observed outside of the hangars. There was no activity.

6, 9, 10 and 13 June. Several railroad cars loaded with sections of wooden barracks were seen on the spur track leading from the railroad station to the airfield. The cars were unloaded at the field. Several soldiers were engaged in assorting the individual building sections. No information could be obtained on the purpose and location of the barracks. Some aircraft of an unidentified type were seen in the western hangar which was partially open.

[redacted] Comment, Rangsdorf airfield is still occupied by an aircraft repair unit. The utilization of the newly arrived wooden barracks has not been determined.
